THE CLIFTON'S STORY.

Tells on Oath How Gardner Blackmailed Her.

Paid Money to the Parkhurst Agent in His Own Parlor.

He Introduced Her to His Young Wife as " Miss Smith."

Catherine Amos, the woman who, hiding her shame under the name of Lillian Clifton, ent a house at 150 West Fifty-third street, where eighteen young women boarded, will testify to-day in the trial of Agent Charles ed for attempted extertion.

W. MOORE, OF THE GERRY

Lillian Clifton is the complaining witness.

CHARLES W. GARDNER.

The parties to the case were visible only one at a time, the Recorder having directed that all of the witnesses in the case be excluded from the room during the testimony of other witnesses, and so Lillian Clifton and the other dissolute women who will figure & witnesses in the case, the scholarly Dr. Parkhurst, Chief Inspector McLaughlin. Capt. Devery, Detective-Sergt. Crowley, policemen, society arents and other witnesses in the case—even the sweet-faced and innocent child-wife of the prisoner, in and innocent child-wife of the prisoner, in the forlorn plight of approaching maternity—were excluded from the court-room.

Thomas W. Moore was the first witness today. After Mr. Moore was sworn, but before his testimony began, ex-Assistant District-Attorney John W. Goff addressed the Court.

He said:

Your Honor,my client informs me that he has been subjected to peculiar treatment, to say the least, in the manner of his convey-ance to and from this court.

pearly five years an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and that in October last he visited Rockwell's saloon at Lexington avenue and Twenty-ninth street to meet a committee of the L. D. K. Association. While there he saw Charles W. Gardner and George C. Grant in the saloon.

at this juncture Mr. Goff interposed with a long cross-examination as to how the with a long cross-examination as to how the with less knew that that visit to Rockwell's saloon was in October. After a while Mr. Wellman objected, on the ground that the cross-examination was frivolous.

"Oh. I'll let him go on a little longer," said the Recorder patiently.

"I object, and except to the remark of Your money," piped Mr. Goff. "I object, and except to the remark of Your Shaughter: Emanuel Crogan and Al Goish. "All right, you may have the exception. That's your remeay; now go on with some business," returned the Recorder, less patients." I object and except the combative Goff, fushing. The exception

Is the Body in the Reservoir Osborne found it out in the accuracy of Moore's memory, Mr. Goff refluctantly subsided and Mr. Welliman went on with the examination.

The fact proven by Moore was simply that in October, to reach the state way to the L. D. Kr. as he passed through the saioon that night in October, to reach the state way to the L. D. Kr. Club-room above, he saw Gardner and Grant together at a drinking table in conversation.

This would taily with Grant's story that in this back room of that saicon in October Gardner gave him the list of disorderly houses and their keepers whom he wished to see privately with regard to "protection maney."

Mr. Wellman began by making the woman confess that she kept disorderly houses at different times at a dozen different addresses, but was now a guest at the Bryant Park Hotel.

"Where did you have see charles to that the per?" Mr. Wellman asked.

she slaims that Gardner, as Superintendent and chief detective of Rev. Dr. Parkhurst's Boolety for the Prevention of Crime, extorted from her $50 a month for "protection" from prosecution by the Parkshurst Society, and attempted to extort $150 in a lump from her by telling her that he had the their on which she would be indicated for keeping a disorderly house unless she paid that sum to him.

The trial attracted a horde of curious people to Part L of the Court of General Sessions, where the most ancient criminal court of the State holds its sessions. Among them were many women, attracted to the burning candle. These women were of all ages, from the maiden of twenty to the gray-haired woman of sixty.

The Clitton identified Clancy as the cabby swho drove her to the police station. Then he said that has she came out of the police station, touls Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said I introduce for Gardner said to me something about arcesting Grant on sight," the witness continued. "Then he said to Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said that, as she came out of the police station, Louis Alien approached her and led her towards Gardner, saying: "You know that man," and then, "Said said: When I pull your house I will not get the warrant in this precinct. Fil pull you in high slik hats. Then he left, and Mr. Allen and I went to another place for lunch."

The witness was becoming very much interested in her narrative. She leaned far forward in her chair and punctuated her sentences with a dainty kid-gloved hand, tontinung, with only an occasional word of encouragement from Prosecutor Wellman, she said:

"So I went to 78 Lexington avenue Oct.
16. Mrs. Merritt, a nice old lady, opened the door. She showed me into the parior, and then Mr. Gardner introduced his wife. He said, Miss Smith, this is my wife.' Later he the only directed so be exhibited in the said. Miss Smith, this is my wife. Later he asked her to leave the room, and after she had gone I remarked. You have a sweet young wife, and he said, 'Yes, I always get that kind.'

"Then I said: 'Well, I've come according to agreement.' Mr. Gardner replied: Yes, napector ves-sergt. The said he said he thought he could fix it for trouble, and unless yeu can help me out I'll have to pull your house.' I asked how much, and he said he thought he could fix it for the succeeding month. Then Mr. Gardner showed succeeding month. Then Mr. Gardner showed in a lot of pictures which he said were pictures of the leap frog 'and 'circus' at Hattle hatten before Distriction of the leap frog 'and 'circus' at Hattle hatten he are the said he was collecting the pictures for a scrap-book for the Society.

"After that Mr. Gardiner went out with me and we drove to a saloon and had a quart tottle of wine. Then Mr. Gardiner got a cab and we drove up the road. That cabman's mame was Plynn."
